Event organiser

Do you enjoy meeting people? Do you like planning parties and film nights with your friends? Are you good at organising things? Then why not think about a career as an Event organiser? An Event organiser is a person who plans and co-ordinates events. They sometimes organise private parties for people who want to celebrate a birthday, a wedding or the end of a degree, for example, but they also organise business conferences, festivals and exhibitions. Every event is different but one thing is certain: an Event organiser's job will never be boring!

Next week I'm starting a Saturday job with Abracadabra, a company that organises children's parties. I'm going to be the magician's assistant and I think it'll be fun! I'll also get some important experience for my career and I'll earn² some money, too! I'm going to use the money to help pay for my 16th birthday party in August. I'm going to have a tropical beach party in the garden! We're going to have an inflatable³ swimming pool, parasols and plastic palm trees. It'll be incredible! The weather may be a problem, of course, but you can't control that! And if it rains, we'll sit under the parasols! A good party planner always finds a solution! ;)

Emma Barrett (15)

I want to be...

My friends call me 'The party planner' because I really like organising social events. I always volunteer to help at school events and I love helping friends prepare for parties! In the future I'd like to be an Event organiser. I'm going to study Events Management at Southampton University and I want to find a job in a company¹ which organises big concerts and music festivals. It won't be easy to find the perfect job, but I'm ambitious and I'm going to try!

Qualifications for the job

Some British Universities offer degree courses in Events Management. Applicants⁴ will need two 'A' levels and GCSEs in English and Maths.

A DIFFERENT KIND OF SUMMER

Olivia Edwards is a sixteen-year-old British student. She's just finished her GCSE exams at school and she's spending the summer doing an intensive language course in Spain. She's never been abroad¹ without her parents before, so it's a very important experience for her. Here she talks about her incredible Spanish summer!

'Hello from Tarragona in Spain! I've been here for four weeks now and I'm having a fantastic time! Tarragona is a beautiful, old seaside town near Barcelona on the north-east coast of the country. I'm attending a Spanish language school here and I'm staying with a Spanish host family.

Miguel and Isabella, my host 'mum and dad' are very kind to me. They've taken me to visit all the tourist attractions in Tarragona and Isabella is teaching me to cook! Last week we made churros, a type of Spanish doughnut² and we ate them with chocolate sauce! Delicious!

Miguel and Isabella's children, Raul and Sofia, are twins. They're 17 years old and they're really friendly. In the afternoons we usually go to the beach and I've met a lot of their friends. We often meet them in the evenings and we buy an ice cream or walk around town and look at the shops. I've got some great ideas for presents to take home.

There are a lot of language schools in Tarragona. Mine is called Academia Inhispania and it's near to my host family's flat. I study there for three hours every morning and I've already learnt a lot of Spanish. The school also organises trips for us at the weekend. We've been to Barcelona and last weekend we went white-water rafting on the River Ebro. That was great fun!

I sometimes miss³ my family and friends, but we keep in touch⁴ via the Internet. My parents and I video chat every evening and I instant message my friends every day. I've just posted some photos on my Facebook page and a lot of people have already commented on them. The Internet is a wonderful invention!
